USP Drug Classification

- The USP Drug Classification system is a non-profit classification system for drugs based on their uses, assigning them unique codes that provide for an easier selection to fit patient needs. This unifies the classification systems for Japan, Europe and the United States.

- The largest categories include Antibacterials, Cardiovascular Agents, Respiratory Tract/Pulmonary Agents, Ophthalmic Agents, and Antivirals.

USP Categories and Classes

All USP Drugs Treemap

Data Source: Dan Ofer, Kaggle (2018)